The Dramatic Flair of Scott Potter

At Carl Greve Jewelers, we have always had a passion for exceptional home accessories and decorative interiors. This season we are thrilled to present the spectacular, one-of-a-kind objets d'art created by celebrated decoupage artist Scott Potter.

Trained as a classical ballet dancer, Mr. Potter performed and choreographed professionally with many prestigious companies throughout his career. Now he translates the unique artistry of a principal dancer to his equally dramatic art of collage under glass. Drawn from the origins of eighteenth-century decoupage technique and inspired by the print rooms of English castles, Scott Potter has established a new standard of decorative design excellence with his creations. His skillful reinterpretation of a cherished art form has resulted in magnificently framed one-of-a-kind collages, elegant place settings and serving pieces for the table, hand-painted glass and wooden screens, large glass vases, urns and lamps, and more—all embellished with his fine handmade papers and gilding.

Mr. Potter, who lives and works in Portland, Maine, has received special commissions for his unique creations from an extraordinary clientele that includes art collectors, interior designers, and royal families. His list of Hollywood collectors includes Oprah Winfrey, Robert DeNiro, Maria Shriver, and Whoopi Goldberg, among others.

Like a beautifully choreographed and costumed ballet, Scott Potter has elevated his art to the highest levels with painstaking attention to composition, detail, and craftsmanship. His work is represented at only a handful of fine stores and galleries in the world, and we at Carl Greve are proud to be among them.
